

Dear Norice,

I understand what you live and it is a very complicated situation. Do not worry, doctor Problemo has some advice for you. First of all, you must have a conversation with her about the fact that she does not accept you at school. You need to tell her how you feel about it and how much it hurts you. If she doesn't change after the conversation, just ignore her and stop to go for supper with your family. If she does not notice your absence, maybe she is not the friend that you thought she was. My last advice is to hang out with your friends and if she doesn't come back, forget her. It is her problem if she loses the good person that you are 😊

Marianne D. & Miriam D.