

The choice of a life

Oops! I've got a big accident! I'm 16 years old, still in high school and my agenda is so full that I have no more time for making money. Since two weeks I know that I am pregnant. I am with my boyfriend since eight months and I really feel that I could make my whole life with him. I told it to him and he told me that he wanted to keep it. The problem is that I don't know if I should keep my baby or not. I'm over stressed because this is a big decision and it includes a lot of responsibilities that a 16 years old girl should not have to assume.

I went to meet the social worker of my school. My expectations were big because I really wanted her to help me in my choice, but she made me realize that I'm the only person that can decide the future of my baby. This meeting didn't make me progress in my decision. My second solution was to talk to my mother. I was thinking that she'll understand my situation and help me with it, but I was wrong. She started yelling at me. So, I was back to the first step. One of my friends had already written to you before and she told me that it helps her a lot. Because I have nothing to lose, I've decided to write to you.

Please, could you help me? It doesn't depend only of my life, but the life of my baby too.
