

I hate time

Hi little boy,

After research on, I think I got some good solutions for you. You seem to have difficulty to keep focus on something. First, I ask you this simple question: do you like your job? If you are always late, it is maybe because you have no interest in your job, so you forget easily to go to work. Then, I suggest you to buy an agenda. You can plan your time and write every important thing so you will not forget what you need to do. Also, you should buy good boots if you do not want to break your other arm on the ice when you are running to work. If all those solutions do not work, you should destroy your television so you will not be distracted again. I hope those solutions will help you to be right on time!
